Sergey Karpukhin
Curriculum Vitae

Sergey Anatolyevich Karpukhin
Date of Birth: May 20, 1982
Email: karpukhin@wisc.edu

Education

September 1999 – May 2004: Irkutsk State University, Department of Philology and Journalism (major in Russian Literature and Language) (Irkutsk, Russia).
September 2004 – May 2005: St. Petersburg State University, Philological Department, Graduate School (St. Petersburg, Russia).
September 2005 – May 2007: Master of Arts in Slavic Studies, University of Virginia (Charlottesville, VA).
2007 – Present: PhD program at the Department of Slavic Literatures and Languages, the University of Wisconsin-Madison (Madison, WI).
2010 – Present: Dissertator, PhD Candidate ("Vladimir Nabokov and the Classics," PhD Minor – Classics)

Work Experience

September 2005 – May 2007: University of Virginia, Slavic Department, TA for Russian 101, Russian 102, Russian 201, and Russian 202.
September 2008 –May 2010: University of Wisconsin-Madison, Department of Slavic Literatures and Languages, TA for Slavic 203 and Slavic 204.
September 2010 – December 2010: University of Wisconsin-Madison, Department of Slavic Literatures and Languages, TA for Lit Trans 203 (Survey of 19th-Century Russian Literature)

Honors and Awards:

May 2009 – Honored Instructor (as identified by students living in University Residence Halls)
October 2010 – J. Thomas Shaw Prize for the paper presented at the AATSEEL-WI conference (shared with Molly Thomasy-Blasing)

Selected Publications:

"Nabokov and Herzen," The Nabokovian 53 (Fall 2004)
"Schast'e," Oktiabr' #12, 2006
"Nabokov's Tropotos. An Approach to the Theme of Nabokov and the Classics," The Nabokovian 65 (Fall 2010)

Languages:

Russian, French, German, Ancient Greek, Latin, Czech